A BUMPER PAY DAY FOR COUNCILLORS

Members award themselves pay rises – some exceeding £2,000 a year

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

A STORM has erupted after Haringey's councillors awarded themselves pay rises ranging from just over £200 to £2,093 a year.

They have been accused of being unwilling to share the pain of austerity after voting to increase the attendance and special responsibility allowances they receive – despite presiding over £70million of cuts to council services.

The pay adjustments recommended by a remuneration panel commissioned by London Councils – the body which represents the capital's 32 local authorities – was approved at a meeting of Haringey Council's standards committee last week.

The council's 48 Labour councillors voted in favour, while the eight members on the Liberal Democrat benches abstained.

The extra payments see the basic allowance for councillors rise by £203 – or 1.9 per cent – from £10,500 to £10,703. However, those holding posts with special responsibilities such as the leader of the council and cabinet members received 6.6 per cent rises, with council leader Claire Kober receiving £2,093 extra, up from £31,497 to £33,590.

The eight cabinet members and the opposition leader received an increase of £1,569, up from £23,622 to £25,191, while the chairman of the overview and scrutiny committee gets a £1,426 increase – from £21,479 to £22,905.

The mayor, deputy mayor, committee chairmen, chief whip, opposition whip and members of the overview and scrutiny committee also received rises ranging between £522 to £1,407.

Gail Engert, the Liberal Democrat opposition leader, hit out, saying: "I think residents will be shocked that Labour voted to increase councillors' pay when so many people are struggling and when so many cuts are being made to local services."

Tottenham resident and activist Martin Ball described councillors as "delusional" to believe they were "deserving" of a 6.6 per cent pay increase. "These significant increases are in contrast to the budget cuts imposed on many services in February and prove that there is no willingness to share the pain of balancing the books of austerity," he said.

The council defended the rises, explaining there was no extra cost involved.

It said contributions which councillors enrolled in the local government pension scheme received until the government scrapped the arrangement last year would now be used to fund the extra allowances.

It added it would have spent about £48,000 on contributions, but had put that money into allowances instead to balance the loss.

"These changes will result in no net increase in spending on members' allowances, which are below or in line with national guidance and have been frozen since 2011," said a council spokesman.

"Money that would have been spent by the council on pension contributions has been reflected in allowances," he added.

Mayor's pride as she takes chain of office

HARINGEY'S new mayor declared how "proud" she was to serve such a "fantastic borough" when she was sworn in at a special ceremony at Alexandra Palace last Thursday.

Jennifer Mann (pictured, right), who represents Hornsey ward, was installed as the borough's first citizen in front of colleagues, dignitaries and family at a special council meeting in the Palm Court conservatory.

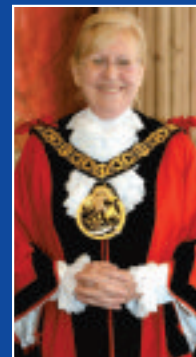

In her inaugural speech she said she felt very fortunate to have the distinction of serving as mayor in a year in which the borough is marking the 50th anniversary of its creation.

"Haringey is a fantastic borough and I feel that our story is often undersold," she said.

"We have the world on our doorstep, the strength of which is shown in the incredible diversity and warmth of our communities and energy of our neighbourhoods."

Ali Gul Ozbek, ward councillor for St Ann's, will serve as deputy mayor.

The new mayor has chosen the All People All Places charity, which supports vulnerable and homeless people, as her official good cause.

Ben scoops youth award with 'intelligent' picture

Intelligent design: Benjamin Levey's photo aims to show how many children around the world are denied an education

A 12-YEAR-OLD has scooped an Amnesty photography award for an image which judges called "very intelligent".

Benjamin Levey, from Rhodes Avenue Primary School, in Wood Green, won the Amnesty International Photographer Award in the Upper Primary and Lower Secondary category.

The competition is open to young people aged from seven to 19 who creatively interpret a human rights topic through reporting, photography, song-writing and performing, fundraising and campaigning.

Benjamin's images were on the subject of education, with an entry called, Why Won't You Teach Me?

Among the judges was fashion and portrait photographer Rankin.

He said: "This is a fantastic concept and a very intelligent execution. I understood the idea immediately and it really left me considering the image afterwards. I really would give this image top marks."

Benjamin said: "I'm very proud to have become a finalist, let alone a winner of this competition."

Now in its second year, the Amnesty Youth Awards attracted more than 1,300 entries.

Proud: Benjamin Levey with his photography award

£80million deal set to kick-start major schemes

Council leader hails agreement with bank

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN £80million finance deal has been struck by Enfield Council to kick-start a range of major schemes in the borough and benefit residents.

Four face murder trial

A TRIAL date has been set for four men charged with the murder of a 23-year-old student in Edmonton.

Jeffrey Kessie, 22, from Nuneaton, in Warwickshire, and two 18-year-olds and a 17-year-old, all from London, who cannot be named for legal reasons, all entered not guilty pleas to murdering Khiry Ford on November 30, 2014.

All four also denied conspiracy to rob on the same date.

Their trial is due to start at the Old Bailey on September 21.

Two other men, Aaron Burrell, 19, of Lacey Close, Edmonton, and Ediri Omonoseh, 18, of South Eastern Avenue, Edmonton, appeared before the Old Bailey charged with conspiracy to rob on November 30 last year.

They have not yet entered pleas and will appear for a plea and case management hearing on June 29.

The council is to borrow the cash from the European Investment Bank, which provides loans at favourable repayment rates.

The loan deal, which will fund infrastructure projects including the Meridian Water housing scheme in Edmonton, the council's school expansion scheme, the Enfield market garden project and the Lea Valley Heat Network, was announced on Wednesday at a conference on one of the top floors of the Gherkin skyscraper in central London.

The bank is investing the money in the borough in a project-by-project basis.

Speaking to the Advertiser at the launch, Doug Taylor, leader of the council, explained that this, combined with the low interest rates, meant that the borough would not be footing the bill for repaying the loan for decades to come, but would instead be able to pay it off more quickly.

"Really you can't borrow the money cheaper," he explained. "Our whole basis as a local

Sealing the deal: Jonathan Taylor, vice-president of the European Investment Bank, and Enfield Council leader Doug Taylor during their meeting at the Gherkin skyscraper authority is to make improvements and in order to make improvements you have to borrow and to borrow you have to pay interest – but that interest can be covered by a return, so a return on the projects will pay off the loan."

He said that one way in which the authority was aiming to make money back was through deals with developers buying into housing projects.

He said: "Individuals will be better off anyway, with better jobs, better houses and better infrastructure."

Mr Taylor also revealed that the council had been awarded housing zone status by the Mayor of London's office and added that it had bought land in the south-east corner of the borough – paving the way for an invitation to developers to bid for the chance to build on the site of the former gas silo.

The vice-president of the European Investment Bank, Jonathan Taylor, told the Advertiser that the bank had been impressed by the case put forward by the borough.

He said: "The bank is in a unique position as we do not have to give dividends to our shareholders – but by the same token we are not a charity, so we need to see the feasibility of return on our investment – and with these projects that is what we see."

Duo are ride on cue for Horse of The Year Show

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A RIDER from Enfield has qualified for the prestigious Horse of the Year Show.

Riding her 17-year-old mare Holly – whose show name is Wendens Ilex – Caroline Watkin has earned a coveted place at the event, which will take place at the Birmingham NEC later this year, after finishing in second place in a qualifier at Houghton Hall Equestrian Centre, in Cambridgeshire.

Caroline, 40, of Raleigh Road, who works as head of communications at central London recruitment agency Robert Walters and fits her riding around her busy job, said: “When we were called forward, I just thought it was another judging process and didn’t realise those were the placings.

“I felt disbelief when I found out we had qualified, absolutely overwhelmed.

“We just missed out on qualifying last year, so I’m so pleased we gave it another go.”

Holly is stabled at Woodhurst Farm, in Crews Hill, and Caroline has lived in Enfield ever since she moved from her native Shropshire more than 15 years ago.

She has been riding since the age of three when she caught the equestrian bug from her mum, but says theirs is not a “posh, horsey family”, just passionate about the animals and sport.

Holly and Caroline also compete at elementary level in dressage and are on the verge of qualifying for regional dressage finals.

Horse and rider now have five months to prepare for the show, which is being held between October 7 and 11.

Caroline added: “When you qualify, the judges offer you advice. I need to keep her tail really tidy and ensure she looks the part.

“It’s a case of making sure we keep schooling and exercising her and make sure she’s well for October.”

Winning team: Caroline Watkin and her horse Holly have won a place at the Horse of the Year Show

Up, up and away: Sam Simpkin abseils down the Olympic Orbital sculpture

Leap of faith for Superman Sam

NOT a bird or a plane – but a Winchmore Hill man dressed in a Superman onesie could be spotted descending the UK’s tallest sculpture on Saturday.

Tourists at the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park in east London who raised their eyes skywards might have made out 26-year-old Sam Simpkin abseiling down the Orbital.

The property investment consultant, who lives in Green Lanes, promised that if he reached £500 in his funding bid for social enterprise Artbox London, he would complete the abseil in a Superman costume.

His mum is a trustee at Artbox, which gives opportunities for people with learning difficulties to create, exhibit and sell their art in galleries and Sam felt compelled to answer her request for help. Having already raised £600, he donned the onesie and took to the 114.5-metre tower along with friend Tristan Hartey, who nurses a fear of heights.

Sam said: “We were on a level with some of the buildings at Canary Wharf, looking out at this amazing view which we were about to step backwards into. After the first couple of steps off the side of the building, which goes against your natural instinct, I started to feel safer – like I wasn’t about to die anyway – and then I began to enjoy it.”

Sam’s descent was witnessed by those in the viewing gallery and was reportedly greeted with particular delight by several children who thought they had spotted Superman in flight.

The two friends have been told the money they have collected is enough to fund more than 30 Artbox sessions and they hope the total will keep rising.

Chickenshed students prepare to take centre stage

UNDERGRADUATES studying for a degree in theatre with the acclaimed Chickenshed theatre company are set to take centre stage.

Two productions performed and scripted by the 32 BA( Hons) students will be staged at the Dugdale Centre, in Thomas Hardy House, London Road, Enfield Tow, on Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

“Approximately two thirds of students who enrol for the course wouldn’t be accepted on any other course at any college or university for a variety of reasons,” said theatre spokeswoman Susan Jamson, “but at Chickenshed we are inclusive and passionately believe that the diversity of our students makes for extremely successful courses.”

The pieces the students from Chickenshed, in Chase Side, Southgate, are performing are titled Consumerism Kills and Break The Cycle.

The first explores the idea of the unnecessary materialistic possessions we own and the plight of third-world, poverty-stricken families who produce them.

Break the Cycle explores forced and arranged marriage and domestic abuse.

Ms Jamson added: “This is demonstrating that theatre performance is not just about acting, but how to put on a main house production in a theatre that is based in a different venue from Chickenshed.

“So the students devised and created their plays, decided and found props, sets and costumes, produced and directed the pieces and are now marketing and promoting the finished plays (and hopefully profiting from sales).”

The performances start at 7pm and ticket prices are £5.

All proceeds from ticket sales will go to the students themselves.

FORTY Hall's first folk music festival attracted 2,500 people who enjoyed traditional offerings from around the world.

The Sing in the Spring festival on Sunday evening was so successful that organisers are hoping to make it a regular event.

During the day people were entertained by The Green Man at the Come a Maying folk event, which this year marked Mental Health Awareness Week.

The Green Man is a figure from folklore and acted as a storyteller at the event, in Forty Hill, to the delight of the crowd.

People could make their own Green Man mask and learn more about meditation and mindfulness to help look after their mental health.

There were also performances from Enfield Music and the Bowes Park Folk Club and visitors enjoyed watching Turkish, Ukrainian, Irish, Bangladeshi and traditional English folk dance.

In the evening people sat on hay bales to enjoy a concert featuring guitarist and songwriter Ewan McLennan, who won the Horizon prize in the 2011 BBC Folk Awards, and 2013 nominee Maz O' Connor, as well as Vicki Swan and Jonny Dyer.

Folk gather to chase off the chill on a night to remember

FORTY FOLK – FORTY HALL

“I thought it was always warm and sunny this far south?” grinned Scotsman Ewan McLennan, guitar in hand as he acknowledged the evening chill in the courtyard at Forty Hall.

He may have forgotten his fingerless gloves, but the 50-strong audience had sensibly wrapped up for Sing in the Spring on Sunday, headlined by rising folk star Maz O'Connor.

With little in common with the likes of Totnes or Cropredy, I hadn't pegged Enfield as a folk music stronghold, but a quick round of hat-spotting suggested otherwise.

From cosy berets and flat caps via a strong showing of chunky-knitted woolly numbers, one music fan was wearing what my companion suggested might double as a Nepalese tea cosy.

McLennan kicked things off to a polite but warm atmosphere, performing on a stage decked with ivy and purple and yellow flowers. A quietly soulful singer-storyteller, he wove Guthrie-inspired travelling ballads from his own pen with a cover of Bob Dylan's Blues.

Stirring strains of the Swedish nyckelharpa then whisked us into Scandinavian mythology and Walpurgis Night centuries ago when a mysterious musician lured young revellers to their death with a bewitching tune.

The instrumental dexterity of Vicki Swan and Jonny Dyer proved more than a match for the squawking parakeets and honking geese flying home over Enfield.

Folk music's long relationship with social justice was sustained by O'Connor.

Her set included a tribute to suffragette Emily Davison and a moving critique of today's gulf between London's rich and poor.

Her honeyed voice conjured up Joan Baez and she resonated most when her lyrics were personal and immediate. Crook of His Arm, a new song, was an ode to O'Connor's father holding her as a baby, hoping to protect his daughter from “the cruel lessons of this life”. Heartfelt and assured: it was over too soon.

“It's getting tricky to read my set-list,” she joked as the sun went down – and the evening would certainly have benefited from some additional light.

Otherwise, more of the same please Forty Hall: hats off to this gem of an evening.

Marie's powerful picture is on permanent display

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A PAINTING by a 12-year-old Winchmore Hill schoolgirl has been selected to become part of a permanent art collection.

Hand of Hope, by Marie Sadler, of Winchmore School, Laburnum Grove, was unveiled at Enfield Civic Centre on Friday.

Marie is one of a group of 12 young people from the school who produced an exhibition to mark Holocaust Memorial Day earlier this year.

Her work was originally exhibited at the Dugdale Centre, in Enfield Town, during the week of Holocaust Memorial Day in January and formed part of this year's theme – Keep the Memory Alive.

Marie's painting was then loaned to Enfield Town Library, which exhibited the work in its community room during March. Enfield Council then chose the piece to add to their permanent art collection, hanging it in a busy area of the civic centre.

In notes to accompany her painting, Marie wrote: "My artwork represents the hope within the Holocaust and I want people to see the story in my work. Keep the Memory Alive is a way to show that the past is just as important as the present and future: we will never forget."

Yasemin Brett, the council's cabinet member for community organisations, said the exhibition had been a "real treat".

She added: "It was powerful, moving and accomplished, showing real understanding of the subject and an intelligent interpretation of the theme. The young artists can all be tremendously proud of their contribution to this very successful event and exhibition."

On display: Marie Sadler, 12, with her picture, Hand of Hope

To the rescue: Next door neighbour Sherene Millwood and her son Javaska helped to save the five children after the fire broke out at the house in Fairfield Road, Edmonton, in the early hours of Friday

A TODDLER and four other children were dropped from the upstairs window of their blazing Edmonton home into the outstretched arms of neighbours in a dramatic early hours rescue.

The children's mother escaped by jumping on to a mattress which the quick-thinking neighbours in Fairfield Road had placed below her, and her husband also leapt to safety.

Police are treating the fire, which broke out at about 4am on Friday, as suspicious.

Next door neighbour Sherene Millwood, 39, said: "I heard a bang and screaming, like someone shouting for help. I went outside and I saw fire coming from the house. There was lots of smoke – the front was really ablaze.

"I woke up my own children and ran out and jumped over the fence. I saw the husband at the window and said, 'Throw the baby to me'.

Arson probe after family of seven flee from house blaze

"They stretched down with the baby and I was able to catch him."

Her son Javaska, 23, helped catch the other children.

Miss Millwood added: "We took the children into my living room and my daughter Talia reassured them. They were crying, in shock and frightened."

The children's father is believed to have hurt his back when he jumped.

The terrified mother had been unwilling to jump as she wanted to know that the children were safe.

Another neighbour put a mattress under the window and urged her to jump, reassuring her that all five children were safe.

She was treated overnight at North

Middlesex University Hospital, in Sterling Way, Edmonton.

The family were believed to be staying with relatives this week.

London Fire Brigade watch manager Dave Girt said that firefighters from Edmonton and Tottenham confined the blaze to the ground floor of the house, which was slightly damaged. The fire was contained in the porch, while the house filled with thick black smoke.

Detective Inspector Chris Rixon, from Enfield CID, said: "We believe the fire was started deliberately and are keen to speak to witnesses or anyone who may have information about who was responsible."

Witnesses should call Enfield CID on 020 8345 4340 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

Cloudy2Clear Windows – Service With A Smile!

It's been a crazy few months for Cloudy2Clear Windows. The company which specialises in repairing windows which are steamed up, broken or damaged by replacing the panes – not the frames has grown rapidly as homeowners take advantage of their services.

Managing Director Richard Power feels that it's all about service. 'Our product is simple. If your double glazing is misted up we can replace the glass at a fraction of the cost of a new window, in any type of frame, and with a new 10 year guarantee. But it's not just about saving people money, although that obviously helps. Many tradespeople have struggled since last year and I honestly feel that during the good times a minority perhaps didn't focus on customer care as much as they should have done. We make sure we turn up when we say we will, do the job the customer requires and leave their house as clean as a whistle. I often get comments back from customers on how they really didn't expect that sort of service which, in a way, is very sad for the service industry as a whole.'

Cloudy2Clear service the Enfield, Edmonton, Palmers Green, Winchmore Hill & Southgate areas and Richard is finding that his approach is a major factor in his success. 'The truth is that it's not just the personal satisfaction that I get from doing a good job but also it makes good business sense. I get a huge amount of business from friends and family of people I've done work for, which just goes to show how much a little bit of effort is appreciated.'

So, if your windows are steamed up, broken or damaged give Richard a call for a free quotation on 0800 61 21 118 and he'll be happy to help!

OVER the centuries, words change their meanings.

Jane Austen uses "nice" with the sense of "fussy". When George Bernard Shaw, in a stage direction, stipulates "a couple are making love on the sofa", he wants the man to be chatting the lady up – nothing more!

With political words, the changes in meaning can be drastic.

The Reform Act of 1832 gave people the vote. Today's politicians use the word "reform" when they plan to cut benefits or restrict people's rights at work.

"Aspiration" and "aspire" are words with many meanings. During the 20th century, they had a collective context.

Working people aspired to a better deal for all – a free health service, affordable housing, adequate pensions. Trade unions and socialist parties fought for these aspirations.

Nowadays we are back to what Shakespeare means in lines like "the aspiring blood of Lancaster": selfish, competitive, aggressive ambition.

If I have aspirations for my family, it implies that I want your children to end up cleaning my children's shoes.

In present-day Britain, a country with weak trade unions and no left-wing politics, this attitude is perfectly understandable.

But why on earth would anyone want to make it the guiding ideal of a political party?

Film shows why we should focus on road safety

RECENT debates concerning road safety in Enfield have made me think of a film at the cinema, Fast & Furious 7 – in which the main characters have strong emotional and physical attachments to their cars.

The film establishes a strong link between driving and identity as being expressed by travelling at high speeds. It sells the car to the viewer as a thrill, a high-speed experience.

In addition, cars in the mainstream media have often been promoted as machines which not only embody speed, but also prosperity and freedom.

Vin Diesel's character expresses this when he says, "I live my life a quarter mile at a time. Nothing else matters: not the mortgage, not the store, not my team...for those ten seconds or less, I'm free." The car is here more than a mode of transport, it's freedom itself.

Cars are often promoted as safe, sustainable and appropriate for urban life. Reality, however, tells us a different story – a story of high levels of road traffic deaths. A recent report informs the public that "we have now reached a point where mortality in young people [in the UK] is no longer dominated by childhood illnesses." We have basically reached a pinnacle in our history as car users.

If you watch the film, you will experience a moving tribute to actor and star of the Fast & Furious franchise, Paul Walker, who was killed while his friend was driving a car at high speeds.

A more fitting tribute would be to re-focus transport policy to improve health and well-being. The debate must remain geared towards road safety.

This is about how we manage our roads...

THIS is The Agitator ("Cyclists should have to have licences too", Ron Tabor, Opinion, May 13) agitating again about poor air quality. With good reason: about 4,500 Londoners die annually as a consequence and thousands more become seriously ill.

Mr Tabor accuses me of making false claims about the beneficial air quality effect of reducing the default speed limit from 30 to a calmed 20mph, so here's my rebuttal: the national campaigning organisation 20's Plenty for Us has a myth-busting webpage about the issue which does much more for my position than his.

Some years ago BRAKE published a critique of assumptions about the effect of slower speed on engine efficiency. However, my case doesn't rest on the characteristics of car engines, but on the way roads are managed.

Consider the current position: 30mph is the default speed limit, but a few minutes watching a Vehicle Activated Sign on an uncongested road will show that 30 is often exceeded, increasing emissions.

At the same time there are checks to progress everywhere, from pedestrian crossings, traffic lights and congestion, which demonstrably provoke sharp acceleration, frequent braking and – unless the car is "high end", cutting the engine when the vehicle is stationary – periods when pollution is emitted to no purpose.

On the other hand, a calmed 20mph limit would allow most pedestrian crossings and quite a few traffic lights to be removed, allowing traffic to drift along quietly with low engine revolutions, little braking, achieving better journey times.

Voting reform is the answer

I WOULD like to thank all those who campaigned for me and voted for me in Enfield Southgate.

I believe that the Green Party could have had many more votes in Southgate and in plenty of other areas, if people had not felt forced into tactical voting, because of our unfair electoral system. However, the votes cast in this election in my area were three times those of 2010, so we are steadily growing.

For many of us, it will take a while to get over the horrendous results of this election, but I understand that a petition to reform our electoral system is to be handed in at Downing Street this week and I hope many people will agree and decide to do something about it.

I am not sure how well known it is, but there is already an electoral reform society called Unlock Democracy, which would no doubt welcome new members as, of course, would the Green Party, since electoral reform is one of our top priorities.

Bad luck, Nick

I AM naturally by background and conscience a Labour supporter, but have voted Tory in the last two general elections and I extend my commiserations to the previous Conservative MP Nick de Bois. I believe he was a good constituency MP and presented himself well in fighting for the Enfield North constituency. Hopefully, he will continue some of the good work he has done in the community and not disappear off the scene till the next election as others have been known to do.

We want your diabetes tales

WE are looking for people affected by diabetes to help us spread the message about the importance of good care and support during Diabetes Week 2015, which will take place between June 14 and 20.

I hope your readers may be able to help us in our search – they may be living with the condition or know someone who is.

We are looking for men and women of all ages and walks of life who have Type 1 or Type 2 diabetes.

We hope that by sharing their personal experiences and stories with the community, we can inspire others who are living with the condition and who might be struggling to manage, make changes and improve their health.

If not managed well, both Type 1 and Type 2 diabetes can lead to devastating complications.

Diabetes is the leading cause of blindness in people of working age in the UK and is a major cause of lower limb amputation, kidney failure and strokes.

People with diabetes willing to share their stories are invited to contact Diabetes UK.

No support for violence

PLEASE allow me to respond to serious allegations that were made in the Opinion page of the Advertiser on May 6 ("Democracy in a region where it's sorely lacking").

Mr Goldstein's letter stated that the Palestine Solidarity Campaign "calls for Israel's destruction" and "is vocal in its support of the Jihadi terrorist organisations Hamas and Hezbollah".

PSC is a UK organisation which has been in existence for over 30 years.

Its mission is to support the Palestinian struggle for human rights and statehood. It does so openly and by peaceful means.

If you can relate to any of the following questions then it is a sign your denture needs attention:

- DO YOU FIND YOUR DENTURES:
- Do not fit as well on your gums as they used to?
  - Are they loose?
  - Do not cut food as well as they used to?
  - Do they make your face look older?
  - Have discoloured despite meticulous cleaning
  - Cause discomfort/pain on chewing?

If any of the above breeds familiar territory then I may be able to alleviate some of these problems for you.

My name is Caroline Persaud I am a qualified CLINICAL DENTAL TECHNICIAN. Many of you may be aware of Dental Technicians/Mechanics who repair and produce dentures for dentists, however, due to recent changes in the Dental law, a group of Dental Care Professionals known as Clinical Dental Technicians have been approved by the General Dental Council and can now see denture wearers who have no natural teeth remaining, directly without having to visit a dentist.

The advantages to you, the patients, are numerous. You can be treated by a professional who has been clinically trained to undertake the impressions of your mouth and who also has the technical skill to manufacture your denture to meet your requirements.

New system lights way to safe escape route for fire alert

ANNE-MARIE SANDERSON

Reassured: Dodsley Place resident Colin Lee

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

AN elderly and blind Edmonton pensioner has praised a new, low-level lighting system which has been installed in his housing block.

Colin Lee, 85, who lives in Dodsley Place, said he now has peace of mind about being able to leave his flat safely in the event of a fire.

The photoluminescent system can be seen easily in darkness and even in thick smoke, and Enfield Council is thought to be the first local authority in the country to install one like it.

Mr Lee, who has been registered blind since 2007, told the Advertiser: "I can make out some things, but it is all grey and I can't easily distinguish one face from another.

"If you said hello to me, I might not then recognise you in the street, which can be embarrassing. But I can see these lights clearly, each step, all the way down. For me, it is a great reassurance."

The new lighting follows an earlier installation at Scott House, one of the council's 18-storey blocks.

The authority's senior management team worked alongside specialist fire risk consultants Euro Compliance, deciding to install the system after reading recommendations made by coroners following fatal fires in Lakanal House, in Southwark, south London, and Shirley Towers, in Southampton, Hampshire.

Phil Williams, operations director at Euro Compliance, suggested that vested financial interests on the part of electrical companies had created a reluctance to embrace the new lighting, despite much-reduced maintenance costs and an improved environmental rating when compared with traditional systems.

"This is a fire safety system that is not only internationally recognised, but is also legally required in many countries including the USA and Japan," he said.

"It will provide peace of mind for the residents of Dodsley Place and of Scott House."

£2million boost for parks

THE borough's parks are set to benefit from a £2million investment over the next year, Enfield Council has announced.

The cash will be spent on improving children's play areas, paths and fencing in the borough's open spaces, with the work due to be completed by March next year.

The project will greatly improve access, help protect parks and give play areas a new lease of life by installing fantastic new equipment for toddlers and older children to play on.

Daniel Anderson, the council's cabinet member for environment, said: "Our parks are already welcoming havens for everyone to enjoy.

"This significant investment will improve them further and give children in Enfield two million reasons to smile when they pay our playgrounds a visit."

On the stump: Capel Manor College students with their tutors

Wood you believe it?

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

GARDENING was turned upside down when staff and students from Capel Manor College unveiled their design for the Chelsea Flower Show.

The Enfield-based college's team have this year looked to the past for inspiration for their garden, which is on show in the Great Pavilion.

The prestigious annual show began yesterday (Tuesday) and runs until Saturday.

The Capel Manor team have designed a modern take on the Victorian concept of a stumpery – an arrangement of tree stumps, logs and pieces of wood with planting in and around them, often featuring ferns, mosses and fungi.

Typically, tree stumps are placed upside down or on their sides to show the “beauty and complexity of the root systems”, explained Sarah Seery, head of horticulture and landscaping at the horticultural college, in Bullsmoor Lane.

“A stumpery adds an attractive and interesting dimension to a garden and is the perfect spot for many shade-loving plants,” she said.

“A stumpery is an ideal way to recycle tree stumps rather than having them removed from your garden.

“By reusing logs and old stumps it creates the perfect habitat for insects, decomposers and micro-beasts like the endangered stag beetle.”

The first recorded stumpery was built at Biddulph Grange, in Staffordshire, in the 1850s.

The gardens were particularly popular in Victorian times as new ferns were being brought back from exotic climes by plant hunters.

Stumperies provided opportunities to plant and exhibit these specimens.

FAMILY ANNOUNCEMENTS

In charge: New mayor (and honorary chief) Patricia Ekechi after the ceremony, together with tribesmen

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

PATRICIA Ekechi was sworn in as Enfield's new mayor at a special ceremony in the council chamber last week.

Colleagues, dignitaries and family friends looked on as outgoing mayor Ali Bakir helped place the ceremonial chain he had worn for the past year around her neck at Enfield Council's annual meeting on Wednesday evening.

The Upper Edmonton councillor, who has represented the ward since 2010 and was deputy mayor in 2014-15, said how proud she was to have been chosen as the borough's first citizen.

Her deputy mayor will be Jubilee ward councillor Bernie Lappage.

In her inaugural speech, the new mayor explained what she hoped to achieve and how she hoped she would be remembered at the end of her

Hail to the chief

term of office. "My parents gave me the Nigerian birth name Chinyere, meaning 'God's gift' and I pray and trust that I live up to my name and hope that my legacy will be that I have been God's gift to the citizens of Enfield," she said.

The grandmother and committed Christian told of her upbringing in civil-war torn Nigeria in the 1960s and how, as a young girl, she had cared for the wounded in refugee camps.

"That was my first taste of serving those in need," she said.

She came to England in 1977 to study and settled in Enfield, where she has lived for the past 37 years.

"This is the borough I fell in love with and the one I wish to protect and uphold for future generations," she added.

Among those attending the ceremony were her brother and his wife, who had travelled from Nigeria, as well as their daughter, a state prosecutor in the US, who had travelled from Florida, along with a tribal prince and his children from the Ihiagwa community in the UK, of whom the new mayor was made an honorary chief in 2011.

She has chosen dementia services in the borough as her mayoral charity.

Mr Bakir's term of office raised almost £35,000, to be shared among a number of children's charities, particularly for youngsters with learning disabilities.

new arrivals to the family, which we will consider for publication on this page.

We would also like to hear from any couples celebrating a golden or diamond wedding anniversary.

If bereaved family members or their friends would like to tell us about a loved one who has died, we may be able to print an obituary.

To have your news considered for this page, call the newsdesk on 020 8364

Weekend walks explore history

FEEL that life's passing you by? Then you need to get out a bit more.

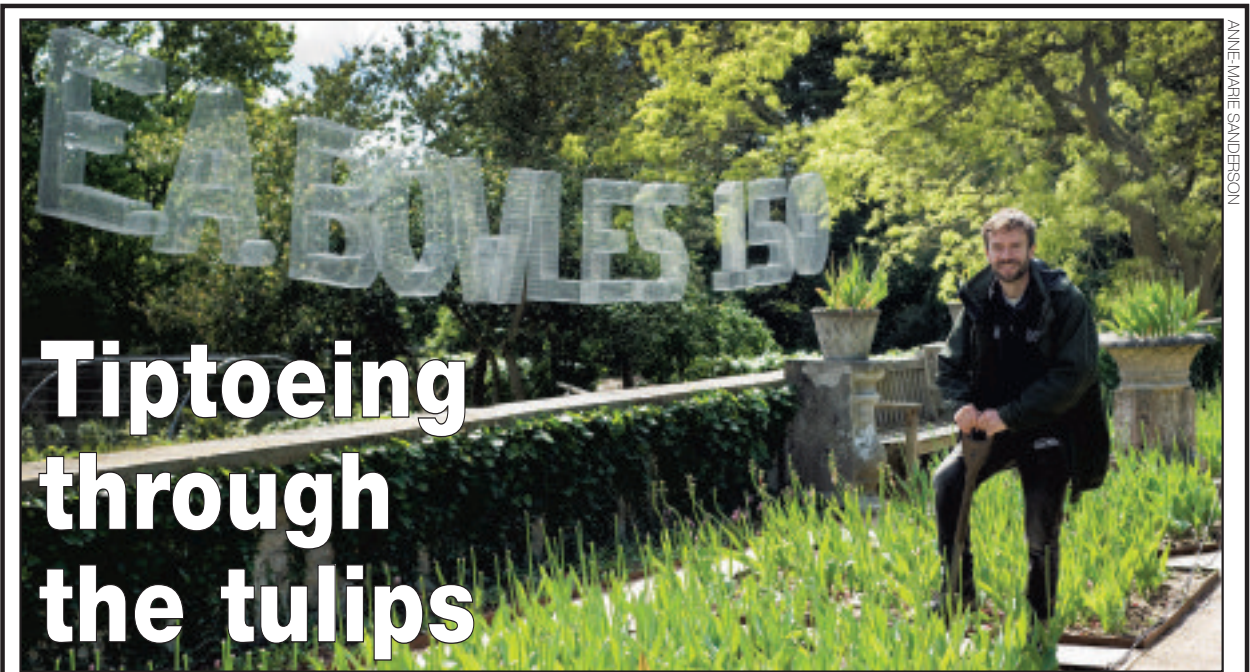

What better way than to take part in two free guided weekend walks during which you can explore the sights of and learn about the borough's rich history.

The walks are taking place on Saturday, May 30, and Sunday, May 31, and are being organised by Transport for London as part National Walking Month.

The first will take the walkers on a gentle stroll from High Barnet to Cockfosters across Hadley Manor Field and Monken Hadley Common, taking in some stunning scenery and spectacular views of Canary Wharf, 15 miles away, as well as being thrilled by the tale of the Battle of Barnet.

The walk takes two hours. Meet at High Barnet Tube station at 2.30pm.

The Sunday walk is a rural roam from Cockfosters to Turkey Street railway station, in Enfield, via the London Loop. Meet at 10.30am outside Cockfosters Tube station.

Tiptoeing through the tulips

Sign of the times: Head gardener James Hall at Myddelton House on the 150th anniversary of EA Bowles' birth

TULIP-themed birthday cake was offered to visitors on Thursday to mark the 150th anniversary of the birth of the man who created Myddelton House Gardens.

A self-taught gardener and botanist with a passion for unusual plants, Edward Augustus Bowles was born on May 14, 1865.

To mark the day, former head gardener Andrew Turvey used wire to craft a commemorative birthday banner featuring the words, "EA Bowles 150".

It now hangs along the tulip terrace – and on July 25 senior gardener Bryan Hewitt will lead a guided walk, Walking in the Footsteps of Mr Bowles.

Mr Bowles used to open the gardens for his birthday, making way for a fundraising fête in support of Jesus Church Forty Hill.

The annual events became known as the Tulip Tea Parties as he would adjust the opening day by as much as a week to ensure that visitors saw the tulips at their best.

To relieve Mr Bowles' passion for seeking out exotic plants, Mr Turvey, Mr Hewitt and trainee horticultural student Helena Dove spent the week with the EA Bowles of Myddelton House Society on a trip to the French and Italian rivieras.

The group retraced his footsteps and visited the Giardini Botanici Hanbury on the anniversary of his birth.

The gardens were established by Sir Thomas Hanbury on a small peninsula jutting down to the Mediterranean Sea.

Mr Bowles first visited in 1889 with his brother Sir Henry and sister-in-law Dolly.

The holiday is considered key to his future direction as it inspired him to collect foreign plants and recreate what he had seen on his travels at Myddelton House, in Bulls Cross, Enfield.

Look to the future

FROM Disney comes two-time Oscar® winner Brad Bird's riveting, mystery adventure Tomorrowland: A World Beyond, starring Academy Award® winner George Clooney.

Bound by a shared destiny, former boy-genius Frank (Clooney), jaded by disillusionment, and Casey (Britt Robertson), a bright, optimistic teen bursting with scientific curiosity, embark on a danger-filled mission to unearth the secrets of an enigmatic place somewhere in time and space known only as Tomorrowland.

What they must do there changes the world – and them – forever.

See it at Cineworld Enfield from Friday. To mark what promises to be one of the big block-busters of the summer, we have ten pairs of IMAX tickets to give away – plus a special merchandise pack of goodies for one lucky winner.

For your chance to win, we want you to share your visions of the future with us. From flying cars, space colonisation, to robots and teleportation, tell us (in 100 words or less) how you think the world will look in 100 years' time?

Send your entry, with your name, address and a daytime telephone number, to: Tomorrowland Competition, North London & Herts Newspapers, 187 Baker Street, Enfield, EN1 3JT, or alternatively email it, with contact details, to competitions@nlhnews.co.uk, with "Tomorrowland" in the subject line, by noon on May 28.

Nine saved from tower block fire

Scene of the fire: Ayley Croft, in Bush Hill Park

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

NINE people were rescued by the fire brigade from a blaze in a 12-storey block of flats

Fire crews were called to the tower block in Ayley Croft in Bush Hill Park just before 3pm last Thursday and they had the blaze under control in less than hour.

London Fire Brigade has praised residents for knowing their fire plan and staying inside their flats to allow firefighters to evacuate people from the parts of the building that were in danger.

Station manager Sean Madeley said: "Our crews worked hard to get this fire under control and contain it to the affected flat."

"The people in the block who weren't affected stayed put in their flats, which is absolutely the right thing to do.

"If you live in a high rise or purpose-built block and the fire is elsewhere in the building, staying inside your own flat is the safest thing to do unless the heat or smoke is directly affecting you," he added.

"Purpose-built flats are designed to give you protection from fire for between 30 and 60 minutes. If you leave your flat, you could be rushing into choking smoke, the fire itself or firefighters using equipment to bring the fire under control in another part of the building."

One elderly woman was taken to hospital by the London Ambulance Service and treated for smoke inhalation.

The cause of the fire is being investigated.

Foodbank job is filling Kerry with satisfaction

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

"I FEEL privileged to be able to hear people's stories, to make a difference when things are really difficult. This is a positive place – it makes a difference."

Standing next to tins of soup, boxes of tea bags and bottles of squash, 27-year-old Kerry Coe breaks into a warm smile as she describes her job as manager of North Enfield Foodbank.

Entering the spotlight in the run-up to the general election, foodbanks have often been painted as gloomy places – bleak manifestations of austerity's unfairness.

So Kerry's job satisfaction may come as a surprise. But while they have sprung up in the face of demand – and in Enfield this is only growing – foodbanks have also brought out people's compassion and demonstrated their capacity for kindness and resilience.

"You'd think that listening to all these stories would make me really upset," Kerry said. "But it's quite amazing to be able to provide meals for a struggling family."

"We're part of the short-term solution. The fact that we don't see the same families coming back time and time again suggests they have reached some sort of resolution to the problem that brought them here – be it housing, sickness or family breakdown."

Operating from a trading estate in Lincoln Road and opening its doors in April 2012, the foodbank fed 2,280 people in 2012-2013 and 5,053 in 2014-15 – a significant increase.

Plenty of food for thought: Kerry Coe

"The need continues to increase," confirmed Kerry, who receives referrals from local authorities and organisations, exchanging people's vouchers for three days' worth of food.

"We see unemployed people, but those working, too, and food parcels depend on the size of their families, needs and cooking facilities. We sit down for a chat to see if we can signpost them to any other organisations. It takes a lot for someone to come here and we are open and loving to everyone who needs support in Enfield."

David MacAuley, chief executive of The Trussell Trust – an umbrella organisation for UK foodbanks – noted that the morning after the general election its Twitter feed was crammed with offers of support.

"Now is the time for hope," he said. "It's a time for engagement, for building understanding of, and compassion for, people in poverty, for making sure that the voices of people who are going hungry are heard and understood."

Kerry admitted that she had been "blown away" by the kindness of people who have donated food, from ordinary householders, to churches and community centres.

"I'd like to say a heartfelt thank you and tell them their donations have gone to people who are extremely grateful. Families with more children sometimes get several crates and when they see them, they ask: 'Is this all for me?'"

"It's quite amazing to be able to provide that." For more information, log on to www.northernfield.foodbank.org.uk or www.trusselltrust.org

Waitrose 'interested' in Green Dragon site

Campaigners blast 'manipulative' announcement

By Ruth McKee

ruth.mckee@nlhnews.co.uk

AN investment company widely criticised by residents for the increasingly ramshackle state of a landmark building is trying to lure supporters to its side with the promise of an upmarket supermarket.

Green Lanes Investments, which bought the Green Dragon pub building, at the corner of Green Lanes and Vicars Moor Lane, earlier this year, has announced it is in talks with supermarket giant Waitrose.

A spokesman confirmed yesterday that the company was in "advanced discussions" with the high-end grocers about opening a new store.

He also revealed that alongside the supermarket, Green Lanes Investments wants to build housing on the site.

He said: "Our aim is to bring a popular business into Winchmore Hill and to offer more jobs and economic activity than the previous use ever did. The extra footfall from a little Waitrose will benefit the other shops in the area."

Campaigner Mike McClean led a protest rally with his wife Sharon outside the Civic Centre, in Silver Street, Enfield, last Wednesday night, over council officers' refusal to grant asset of community value status to the building.

The following day, he met council officers in a bid to persuade them to consider a fresh application, which they agreed to do.

Mr McClean said: "The company is smart. What should have been reported this week was the success of our protest and our meeting with the chief executive of the council Rob Leak. "Instead, its PR machine has timed this announcement about Waitrose to overshadow everything else."

Mr McClean, 43, who lives in Winchmore Hill, added that despite Green Lanes Investments insisting that it would not knock the building down, he did not see how it could possibly install a supermarket there without dramatically altering the look of the Tudor-style building.

He added: "It is a manipulative step to try and get residents to think, 'Oh well, it's a nice shop, so maybe it won't be too bad'."

As a result of the successful meeting with officers, Sharon stayed up all night to draft a new asset of community value application, which they handed in to the council on Friday morning.

Because there is currently a retail shop in the pub in the form of the discount shop, the company does not need to apply for a change of use from the local authority and can go ahead with the Waitrose deal.

However, while the council considers the McLeans' application, all proposals for the premises must be put on hold until the authority makes a decision.

Smoking levels in Turkish community are 'shocking'

Study reveals especially high rates among borough's young people

By Lucy Purdy

newsdesk@nlhnews.co.uk

A WORKSHOP tomorrow will confront worryingly high rates of smoking in Enfield's Turkish community – especially young people.

Research shows that 55 per cent of Turkish males and 41 per cent of Turkish females between the ages of 11 and 25 who live in the borough smoke.

This compares with a borough average of less than 16 per cent.

The study, organised by Enfield Council, involved a total of 397 people. Some of those asked did not recognise that smoking specialist tobacco through a water or shisha pipe was classified as smoking.

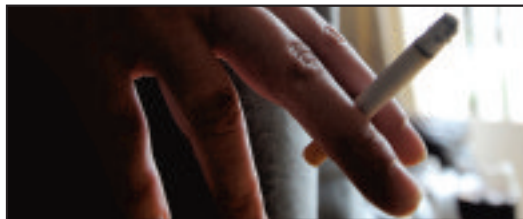

The workshop at Kirkisrak Community Centre, in Derby Road, Ponders End, will explore how smoking in the Turkish community can be reduced – from helping established smokers to ditch the habit, to urging young people not to start.

Alev Cazimoglu, the council's cabinet member for health and social care said: "This research is both shocking and frightening and we want to find the best way to get our messages across. Smoking is often a cultural and social activity among Turkish communities."

"However, I am determined that we look at all ways of getting messages across that will support people not to start smoking or persuade people to stop."

"Whether it is for health, financial or social reasons, we must promote messages that will convince the Turkish community as much as they have already reached other communities."

Dr Mick Ozkar, consultant cardiologist at North Middlesex University Hospital, in Edmonton, will discuss the dangers of smoking and Ufuc Genc, one of the council's Stop Smoking Service advisers, will describe the work already taking place in the borough.

Striking reminder: The research suggests worryingly high levels of smoking among young people

Police step in to deal with 'rowdy' gathering

POLICE were called on Saturday night to reports of "rowdy" youths gathered in Winchmore Hill.

Peter Simpkin, 72, who lives nearby, told the Advertiser he noticed a group had gathered outside Sainsbury's supermarket in Green Lanes.

He spotted the youths from his bedroom window at 11pm after returning from an evening out with his wife.

"The next time I looked," he said, "there were police cars and vans. About 100 youths had gathered and Green Lanes was blocked for about half an hour. I have no idea what it was about, but the police were brilliant in averting what could have been a nasty incident. They were very calm and weren't pushing back."

A spokesman for the Metropolitan Police said they had received a report of between 30 and 50 people gathered in the street and an allegation that one person had been approached in an "aggressive manner".

However, no offences were recorded and no arrests were made.

Men jailed over torture of two kidnap victims

Twenty-four years: Courtney Bishop

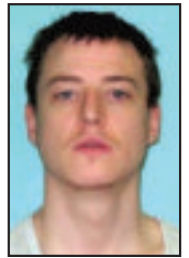

To be sentenced: Christopher White

Fourteen years: Nigel Bishop

Fourteen years: Keith Walker

Eleven years: Allan Smith

FOUR men have been jailed following the kidnap and torture of two victims, including one from Enfield, two years ago.

Courtney Bishop, 27, of Lambeth, south London, was jailed at the Old Bailey for a total of 24 years last Friday after being convicted of offences against both the victims.

His twin brother Nigel Bishop, of the same address, was jailed for 14 years after being convicted in relation to the victim from Enfield.

Keith Walker, 35, of Mitcham, south London, was jailed for 14 years after being convicted in relation to the second victim.

Allan Smith, 28, from Islington, north London, was jailed for 11 years after being convicted in relation to the first victim.

A fifth defendant, Christopher White, 29, of Croydon, south London, will be sentenced at a later date after being convicted along with Courtney Bishop on 10 counts, five on each victim.

The offences included conspiracy to kidnap, conspiracy to falsely imprison, conspiracy to blackmail, GBH and conspiracy to burgle.

The first victim, a 27-year-old man, was dragged from the street outside his home in Upper Holloway on May 3, 2013, shoved into the back of a car, hooded and driven off.

Although he could not see, he later told police he believed he was taken to a flat in a tower block where, over the next 12 hours, he was tied up, gagged, beaten so badly he was left with a broken eye socket, burned with an iron and had boiling water poured over his body.

His kidnappers then contacted his family and friends demanding a ransom for his return. After his ordeal, he was dumped in Chalk Farm.

He later discovered that his keys had been taken and his home had been burgled.

The kidnappers struck again two days later, snatching a 24-year-old man from inside his home in Enfield.

He remembered little apart from that, similarly to the first victim, his head was mostly covered and a sock was shoved in his mouth.

He was beaten with an iron bar and was burned and tortured to such an extent that he suffered kidney failure.

His captors contacted his family and demanded £30,000, threatening to cut off his fingers if they did not pay.

He came round in the back seat of his own car near Brent Cross and spent the next four days recovering in intensive care.

The first victim provided a detailed description of the flat where he had been held, in which there was a distinctive round window with views of Wembley Stadium.

Detectives used this information to identify a property in Adelaide Road, Hampstead.

Fingerprints implicated Courtney Bishop and mobile phone records linked him to the other defendants.

He was also caught on CCTV in a shop in south London, where the family of the second victim had been sent to pay the ransom.

Nigel Bishop was discovered to have hired a car identified as having been used to collect some ransom money.

Detective Sergeant Tim Mustoe, lead officer in the case, said: "The defendants were members of a violent gang who treated kidnap and torture as a business. They had no regard for the impact their offending had on the victims or the victims' families."

Dad's Army vicar offers us a Frank assessment

By Russ Lawrence

russ.lawrence@nlhnews.co.uk

SECRETS about the making of Dad's Army are revealed by Frank Williams, who played the wonderfully eccentric vicar in the classic TV comedy when the veteran actor presents an hilarious afternoon of TV nostalgia on Sunday.

The genial 82-year-old, who played Reverend Timothy Farthing, will entertain the audience with anecdotes from his 50-year acting career when Well Really, Captain Mainwaring comes to Wylyotts Theatre, in Darkes Lane, Potters Bar.

The title comes from the familiar phrase the slightly tetchy character he played would utter as he tried to come to terms with the elderly platoon's invasion of his beloved church hall.

Frank is one of only two surviving members of the original cast – Ian Lavender, who played Pike, being the other.

"It's been simply wonderful to be part of something so special," said Frank. "Although I have spent many years in various film and television roles, being part of Dad's Army is hard to beat."

He gives a unique behind-the-scenes glimpse with stories of the celebrated cast of Dad's Army.

"I'm looking forward to talking about the strange and remarkable things that the audience never saw," says Frank, "like the time we were filming an episode of Dad's Army and nearly got flattened by a runaway steam train, or when I watched myself on live TV being operated on in Emergency Ward 10 in the comfort of my own home."

While still best known as the vicar from the show, he has worked with many of the greats, including Tommy Cooper, Harry Worth, Dick Emery and Morecambe and Wise, as well as appearing in more than 30 feature films including three with Norman Wisdom.

His numerous other television series include The Army Game, All Gas and Gaiters, Monty Python's Flying Circus and, more recently, You Rang M'Lord.

The format of Well Really, Captain Mainwaring sees Frank interviewed by author and entertainer Chris Gidney, who says: "There are rarely seen personal home movies of Frank's of all the Dad's Army cast on tour, plus a glimpse of some of his other work."

The event includes afternoon tea thrown in as part of the ticket price.

A glimpse behind the scenes: Frank Williams, who played Reverend Timothy Farthing in the long-running sitcom Dad's Army

Tomorrow never knows

TOMORROWLAND: A WORLD BEYOND (12A, 130 mins)

SHARING its title with the futuristic kingdom in Disney theme parks, Tomorrowland is a big budget science fiction adventure directed by Brad Bird (The Incredibles) about two strangers, who travel to another dimension where their actions have an impact on the past and present.

At the 1964 World Fair, a young boy called Frank Walker (Thomas Robinson) takes a magical trip to a world called Tomorrowland in the company of a girl called Athena (Raffey Cassidy) by touching a lapel pin emblazoned with a capital T.

Android leaders of Tomorrowland discover young Frank and return him to the dull, lifeless world we know. Many years later, Frank (now played by George Clooney) is a grizzled, world weary inventor, who is haunted by his memories of Tomorrowland and the beautiful Athena.

A spirited young woman called Casey Newton (Britt Robertson), who has glimpsed this futuristic realm by touching her own lapel pin, gate-crashes Frank's life at the most inopportune moment. Together, they travel to Tomorrowland, where Frank is reunited with Athena and discovers that the fairytale realm has been corrupted by power and greed.

Ellis and Co lends lettings expertise to new property investors

More and more people are investing in buy-to-let property due to its financial potential. Ellis & Co is a sales and lettings business that has the required expertise to help guide people through their buy-to-let investments from start-to-finish.

However, being a landlord is an entirely new experience for many people, and it can be daunting. As well as choosing the right property in a suitable location, it is essential that it is marketed and managed effectively to achieve profitable returns.

Ellis & Co in Enfield Town operates within both the sales and lettings markets with over 30 years experience. As such, we understand what it takes to be a successful landlord and can fully support you in the process.

Using our extensive market research and industry knowledge on property investment returns, we can offer advice on the world of buy-to-let, from the first stages of the property search, to finding tenants and looking after your property before, during and after tenancy.

Not only can property earn capital growth if managed correctly, it can also provide annual rental income, making it a rewarding investment choice.

Richard Oughton from Ellis and Co Enfield Branch commented, "Investing in property is a typically lucrative endeavour and buy-to-let is fast becoming a popular way of generating income within the property industry. All our staff live in the area and are fully trained and equipped to offer advice on properties for sale across Enfield including potential buy to lets."

For further information on local buy-to-let opportunities, please visit Ellis & Co at 58 Church Street, Enfield EN2 6AX or call us on 020 8363 8282. Alternatively email us at enfield@ellisandco.co.uk.

YOUR HOME MAY BE REPOSSESSED IF YOU DO NOT KEEP UP REPAYMENTS ON YOUR MORTGAGE OR ANY OTHER DEBT SECURED ON IT. *Terms and conditions apply. Any incentive is subject to using the services of a Fairview approved IFA and panel solicitor/licensed conveyancer. With the Help to Buy scheme you can purchase your new home for just 80% of the full purchase price. A minimum of 5% deposit is required. The outstanding balance is financed through an equity loan funded by the HCA, which is interest free for the first five years. After 5 years, the equity loan will be subject to a fee due to the HCA of 1.75% per annum on the outstanding amount of the equity loan and is paid back as a percentage value of the Open Market Value after 25 years or subsequent resale, whichever occurs earliest. Help to Buy is available on selected, limited properties only. No other incentives are available. An arrangement fee is required by the purchaser. # MOTORS

■ SALES ■ SECOND HAND ■ SERVICING ■ ACCESSORIES

The best of both worlds...

By Matt Joy

HYBRIDS aren't a new thing, of course, but the idea of living with one for six months most certainly is.

Responsibility brings with it a long list of stuff you need to put a line through, including having fun, being frivolous and retaining money in your wallet. C'est la vie.

In any case, my daily routine has changed somewhat in recent months and it would seem that a hybrid has potentially become the perfect vehicle for the irritating collection of journeys I now have to make.

There's a 2.0-litre petrol turbocharged version of the Lexus NX now, but this is the 300h model, pairing a 2.5-litre petrol engine with an electric motor to give a choice of all-electric running for short distances, just petrol or a combination of both depending on the driving mode selected.

In other words, you can set the powertrain up to be super frugal or deliver maximum power as well as somewhere between the two. In a boring and predictable fashion, I fully anticipate plenty of the former. Unlike the old days when I had a two-way commute of 60 miles, I now have to scurry across town at all times of day, usually bumper-to-bumper.

In an effort to appease my own guilt and all those who think I should spend two hours walking my children to school, I'm hoping being able to cover as many miles as I can under electric steam while still being able to do early-morning airport runs without the need for a charging point.

The NX is also designed to cope with the kind of shenanigans that can only come with three kids and a dog.

Being a Luxury specification model means this particular NX gets the all-important leather interior.

If you've never owned an animal of the two or four-legged variety, then you have no idea how a leather finish can take the pain out of clearing up after those less tidy than you.

Better still, the NX's cabin looks the part, has the all-important high driving position and should be practical, too. The rest of the kit list is also tidy.

As standard, the NX Luxury gets 18-inch alloy wheels, keyless entry and start, adaptive cruise control and the large seven-inch display screen including DAB, Bluetooth and USB inputs.

And there should be something in it for me, too. It's still early days, of course, but I'm a big fan of the NX's shape.

For all their qualities, some previous Lexus cars have been guilty of too much discretion, but the NX is the first car from the manufacturer designed to polarise opinion.

That's ideal because I like the way it looks and I don't care if no-one else does.

So, in theory, the Lexus NX should be able to deliver the short-distance EV running to make the school run less painful as well as using cheaper unleaded rather than diesel, but still provide the comfort and luxury of a premium car – and put up with my kids.

It's a tall order for any car, but the NX has the potential to take it all in its stride.

Public Notices

NOTICE UNDER SECTION 27 OF THE TRUSTEE ACT 1925
NATIONAL PHARMACEUTICAL ASSOCIATION
STAFF RETIREMENT BENEFITS PLAN (1973)
This notice is addressed to former and current employees of the following companies:
National Pharmacy Association Limited
Pharmaceutical Services Negotiating Committee
National Pharmaceutical Association Limited
The National Pharmaceutical Union
Central National Health Service (Chemist Contractors Committee)
Pharmaceutical and General Provident Society Ltd.

The National Pharmaceutical Association Staff Retirement Benefits Plan (1973) (the "Plan") has commenced the process of winding-up.

If you were or are an employee of one of the above companies, and a member of the Plan and think you are entitled to benefits under the Plan but have not been contacted in respect of those benefits, or you are a spouse, civil partner, child or dependant of a deceased member who worked for one of the above companies, please contact in writing the Trustees of the Plan c/o Bijal Shah, National Pharmacy Association, Mallinson House, 38-42 St. Peter's Street, St. Albans, AL1 3NP, UK by no later than 20th July 2015. You should include details of your current address and any benefits you think you are entitled to.

It is the Trustees' intention to transfer the assets of the Plan into individual insurance policies written in the name of individual members as soon as possible. If the Trustees are not aware of any entitlement you may have under the Plan by 20th July 2015 they will not be liable to pay benefits to you.

If you already receive a pension from the Plan, or you have received announcements from the Trustees regarding the winding-up and transfer of the Plan's liabilities, you do not need to write to the Trustees as they already have full details about your entitlements. Issued on behalf of the Trustees of the National Pharmaceutical Association Staff Retirement Benefits Plan (1973)

SET FOR A CLEAROUT

By Dominique Stafford

MAURICIO POCHETTINO admits that Tottenham Hotspur will need to learn from their past mistakes in the transfer market when they look to strengthen their squad over the summer.

Spurs are once again expected to bring in several new faces prior to the start of next season as they look to close the gap on the top four.

A number of departures are also expected – including many of the players brought in two summers ago when the club reinvested the £85million they received for the sale of Gareth Bale to Real Madrid.

The likes of Roberto Soldado, Paulinho, Etienne Capoue and Vlad Chiriches have all struggled since arriving at White Hart Lane at that time, and head coach Pochettino is aware that Tottenham must invest more wisely this time around.

“We need to look forward and we need to learn from the past,” he said. “We have a plan for the development in the next few years and we need to deliver it.

“If you want to bring in some players, maybe you need to sell some players. Always you need to analyse the season and nobody is sure that they are staying at the club. But this is my job, to analyse, assess and make a decision.

“It is not because we brought some player in and we were sure, and he was poor during the season that he stays. If you bring in a player and the performance was not good, it is not good. You make a decision.

“You need to be professional when you make a decision. I am very cold on my professional side because I need to make decisions.

“Maybe I love a player in the personal way and as a human being, but he was poor so I need to put him out of the starting 11. I have to be fair with the whole squad. I need to be professional and say for the best of the team.”

Meanwhile, Spurs closed in on securing a spot in next season's Europa League by claiming a 2-0 win against relegation-haunted Hull City in their final home match of the campaign on Saturday.

Second-half goals from Nacer Chadli and Danny Rose were enough to give Tottenham a win which keeps them sixth in the table – just a point behind fifth-placed Liverpool – heading into Sunday's season-ending showdown at Everton.

“The two goals we scored were fantastic,” Pochettino added. “I'm happy for the players and for the supporters because they deserved this last victory at home.

“The first half was difficult because Hull were very aggressive, but I think that we deserved it in the end. It's always good when you win and those three points were the most important thing.

“It was important after two defeats at home to recover this good feeling and I'm happy, but we need to keep working because we need to try to win the last game at Everton.”

North Middlesex maintain their fine start to the campaign

NORTH MIDDLESEX'S fantastic start to the season in the Premier Division of the Middlesex County Cricket League continued on Saturday when they won by three wickets at Finchley to remain joint top of the table.

North Middlesex had stunned champions Teddington in their opening match the previous week and they were once again able to secure maximum points to maintain their 100 per cent record.

Excellent bowling from Tom Nicoll (3-37), Will Nicoll (2-16) and Sam Webber (2-28) saw Finchley restricted to 209 batting first in what proved to be a keenly contested encounter.

Both openers fell cheaply when North Middlesex replied, but Will Vanderspar (42) got their innings back on track and Joe Hewton's unbeaten 49 helped them recover from 118-6 to reach 210-7 with eight balls to spare.

Meanwhile, Hornsey had to settle for a winning draw from their trip to Acton in Division Two.

Garfield Struthers scored exactly 100 and Ed Wharton smashed 53 not out off just 23 balls as the visitors declared on 229-8 batting first.

Martin Tucker (3-24) bowled well during Acton's reply but Hornsey were frustrated by an excellent innings of 79 from Hannadige Soysa as the hosts closed on 172-7.

Elsewhere, Highgate moved clear at the top of Division Three after securing a 75-run victory at home to Winchmore Hill.

William Brookes (58) led the way as Highgate recovered from 76-7 to get up to 191-9, before Craig Gourlay's 4-28 helped dismiss the visitors for just 116.

But North London are still searching for their first win of the season after they were forced to hang on for a losing draw in their Division Three clash at home to Harrow.

Sami Haider took 5-57 as Harrow were dismissed for 218 batting first, but the hosts struggled in reply and had to battle hard to avoid defeat as they made it to 169-9.

North Middlesex host Southgate on Saturday, while Hornsey go to Brentham, North London entertain South Hampstead and Highgate visit Harrow Town.

Athletes produce a solid performance

ENFIELD AND HARINGEY Athletic Club claimed fourth spot when they hosted the latest round of the Southern Premier Division of the upper age group of the United Kingdom Youth Development League at the Lee Valley Athletics Centre on Saturday.

There were a number of impressive individual displays, with the under-20 men's age group seeing a double victory in the 110metres hurdles – with George Vaughan taking the A-string and Liam Hunt triumphing in the B-string race.

There were also victories in this age group from Enrique McCorkle in the B-string triple jump and James Shackleton in the B-string pole vault.

Sean Bazanye Lutu shone in the under-17 men's events as he won the A-string 100m hurdles and the A-string high jump, while this age group also saw victories from Demi Ajiboye in the B-string 400m, Joshua Akinwumi in the B-string 100m hurdles and Ross Hajipanayi in the under-17 pole vault.

Among the women, the 100m hurdles proved to be the most successful event at under-20 level as Kaeshelle Cooke took the A-string and Georgia Green the B-string.

Green also won the B-string long jump, while there were further victories from Melanie Mazza in the triple jump, Katie Hatchett in the pole vault and the 4x400m relay squad of Chloe Thornton, Cooke, Mary Martin and Natassja Allin.

There were wins for the under-17 women from Issy Boffey in the A-string 800m, Beth Forster in the B-string 1,500m, Finlay Marriott in the A-string 80m hurdles and the 4x300m relay team of Megan Sims, Sara Jacob, Valentina Granata and Boffey.
